DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 23-27, 36-38, 40-43, 45-50, 52-54 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The phrase, "nitrogen based tetradentate [or hexadentate] ligand" is unclear. It appears that N must be present, but in what form? Does the N have to be present in a binding position, or just somewhere in the ligand? And if it must be in a binding position, do all these positions have to be N? That is, could there be a tetradentate ligand, in which, say two binding positions are N and two are O?

Claims 23-29, 31-34, 36-50, and 52-54 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

Enablement cannot be seen for the scope of Z and T. The actual trigonal, and tetragonal supramolecules have some significant separation between the N atoms of the polydentate ligands. This would appear to be essential, both to forming a cavity, and because such a large number of bulky groups need some separation. But the claims do not require this in a ligand. Thus, claim 28 recites tetrazine, which is the heteroaryl group with 4 nitrogens next to each other in a ring. There is no possible way that four metals could possibly fit around such a ring.

Claims 23-24, 26-31, 33-36, 38-40, 42-47, 49-52, 54 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for other choices, does not reasonably provide enablement for $m=5$. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. None of these metals can have 5 carbonyls present. The metals would have too many electrons.

Claims 28-29, 31-34, 39, 44 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

1. The term "cyclyl" is not a standard term. What does it mean? If it means any cycle, then why are the next three terms present, as these are all cycles?
2. The first three terms are monovalent, but the variable is tetravalent.

The traverse of the requirement for restriction is persuasive, and groups II and II are combined.
